OBSERVATIONS.

THE MS. from which the above Extracts have been made is a small 4to, bound in boards, in excellent preservation, and belonging to the Royal (National) Library, Stockholm. It is written on paper, with the exception of folios 4 and 5 which are of parchment. The commencement is abrupt, and yet complete, as if there formerly had been a proper title prefixed. Pages 1 to 91 proceed regularly with medical receipts, the poems included, in a bold clear hand, neat and solid, thirty lines in a page. From page 91 to 104 we have quite a different style, but of the same contents. The rest of the volume (page 105 to 216) are in the same hand as the first ninety-one pages, but are imperfect both at the beginning and the end, though apparently the missing leaves had perished at the period when the whole volume was bound. The contents are the same as the rest, with the exception that from page 156 we have a kind of botanical dispensatory, a large number of herbs being named in Latin and in English, with descriptions of their appearance and uses, &c.

As to the age of this volume it is very difficult to decide. Although I have read the whole through very attentively, I have not been able to discover anything of any kind, direct or indirect, which can at all assist us in discovering the name of the author, or the period when he flourished, with the exception of the following sentence, which immediately follows the poetry, page 80.

* Perhaps the same name.

Ros marine is bothen erbe & tre. hot and drie of kende hys lewys skole of sallerne wrot to y^e countess of hernaunde and sche sente ye copy to hyr^e dowter phelyp qwen of Ingelond.

It may also be mentioned that, at page 138, after a sovereign remedy for the palsy, we have these words:

Et hoc probatum est q^d Castell.

Now the only Philippa of Hainault who ever became Queen of England was the spouse of Edward 111. and was married to that monarch in 1328. She lived till 1369, and consequently if our MS. was written during her lifetime it cannot be later than the above date. But as this outward proof is very uncertain, we must fall back upon its inward characteristics. These are, first, the paper, and second, the pictura and spelling.

1. The paper is thick, with three different watermarks: A. a bull's head. B. an anchor. C. a pair of spectacles (the old-fashioned barnacles).

2. The pictura is not Elizabethan, but decidedly much older. The spelling I imagine to be not later than the period pointed out by the above extract, viz. 1350-1400.

This I infer more particularly from the many transition forms from barbarous Anglo-Saxon to the language of Chaucer, and from the retention of the Anglo-Saxon þ.

I imagine, therefore, that the MS. was written in the reign of Edward
111. but certainly not later than that of Richard 11.

For the rest I would beg to remark as follows:

1. In the first and third parts, pp.1-91 and 105 ad fin. the scribe has used the Anglo-Saxon þ and its child and corruption the y almost promiscuously.

2. In the second part, pp.91-104, on the contrary, the Anglo-Saxon þ is always written very distinctly for th, and is never confounded with the vowel y.

3. In the first and third parts there are no points, except here and there (very seldom) a dot.

4. In the second part the dots are numerous: often placed in the middle of the sentence.

5. In the poetry, where lines are written regularly under each other, no dots occur; but where two rhyming lines are written in one, the distinction is marked by one, two, or three dots promiscuously.

6. In copying the extracts, the most literal exactness has been observed, except that I have everywhere, to save unnecessary trouble used the easier written y both for y and þ.

7. To save trouble I have written out all contractions in full, (the - excepted) but have distinguished the same by marking them as italics.

8. As the u and n are for the most part absolutely alike, I may possibly here and there have confounded the one with the other.

9. Occasionally the text exhibits evident omissions and corruptions, but it was not worth while to trouble myself with corrections.

10. The Latin botanical synonymes exhibited in the glossary are those of the MS. itself.
